Wood for Aircraft Propeller Blades Adds to Our Forestry Problem

By C. L. PACK, American Forestry Association

We have just seen four sets of propeller blades take the giant dirigible R-34 across the ocean and back. These eight blades are made of wood. The experts have found nothing to take the place of wood in those blades. I do not believe they ever will.

Those blades are but seven feet long, but much more wood than that is used in turning them and finding just what will stand the terrific tests. A propeller makes about 1,700 revolutions a minute. The whirl of propeller blades will soon be multiplied by a million, and they carry a message to the business world that must be answered.

With over-ocean transportation demonstrated the peace burden placed upon the forests of this country will make the call upon them due to war seem insignificant, and one of the biggest reconstruction problems before the country today is a national forest policy.

The lake states now import lumber from other sections of the country. Experts estimate the supply of southern pine will be exhausted within the next fifteen years. New England no longer produces enough lumber for her own needs. The center of the lumber industry is rapidly moving toward the Pacific coast.

In the wood-using industry there are few concerns that can point to a five-year supply. They give work to thousands of people, and export products valued at $180,000,000 every year, to say nothing of the home market. The United States exported three and one-half billion board feet of lumber and saw logs a year before the war.

Europe's need now will be around seven billion feet a year for some time. Many of the forests of France have been destroyed and the American Forestry association is collecting a fund to help reforest the devastated areas.

There is an end to all things, and there is certainly coming an end to our forest supply if the question of a national forest policy is not solved and solved quickly.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS.

Recreation in Hospitals.

The American Red Cross conducts its recreational work in hospitals through trained men and women, introducing a multitude of recreations suited to the handicaps of the men. The accompanying view of a hospital ward shows in operation a moving picture projecting machine, developed by a Red Cross recreational director, which throws the pictures on the wall so that the men do not have to stir from their cots.

Educate the Public to the Necessity for Game Protective Legislation

By JOHN B. BURNHAM, American Game Protective Ass'n

Almost everywhere except in North America the food shortage has caused appalling inroads on the game supply. Aside from the northern portion of North America the picture is one of nearly universal gloom, but here, I am glad to say, conditions are much brighter.

Next to the advance of civilization the chief factor that has reduced our game is the market hunter. Almost everywhere we have put an end to the commercialism of game, with the result that game is on the increase. The low water mark in many places has been passed. We have the laws and the machinery for putting them into effect.

From my viewpoint we now need better enforcement of existing laws rather than additional restrictions, which are only exasperating to good sportsmen. Where the law is not thoroughly enforced you and I know that such restrictions penalize the best class only and that the others do as they please. Closed seasons are worse than useless unless they are enforced and the vermin kept down.

In the United States antelope and mountain sheep have been exterminated under long closed seasons. In this instance it is true there should have been closed seasons, but they should have been enforced. It would be much better to lose the game without law than to lose both the game and respect for law at the same time.

Don't spring your law, no matter how good, until you are prepared to put teeth in it. Better err on the side of too great liberality than err in the other way. Educate the public to see the necessity for protective legislation. The great mass of testimony proves that paper laws play into the hands of the Huns of sport.

"The Differences Are Superficial and the Resemblance Is Profound"

By H. A. L. FISHER, British Minister for Education

Great Britain and the United States are now linked together, and I for one believe that the union between the great English-speaking races is to be an enduring union. It will not require any written or formal text to cement it, as it is founded upon the possession not only of a common language and a common civilization but on an outlook upon life which is common, much as we may be tempted at times to insist upon trivial and superficial differences. I have traveled in America myself, and the more I saw of the great republic the more I was convinced that the differences were superficial and the resemblance profound. But I feel that it is of the greatest importance that from time to time learned men from America should come here to show us how we look in the mirror of American public opinion, what errors we have committed and how we may retrieve them, because it is only by such a process of instruction that we shall really arrive at that complete popular and mutual understanding which is the truest basis of political life.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS.

In Siberia.

Possibly the most important Red Cross work in Siberia, and one which most demands the continuance of operations there, is the campaign against typhus. Over a stretch of 4,000 miles the American Red Cross has fought the scourge. Here is seen "The Great White Train," an anti-typhus institution which, with its crew of doctors and nurses and cargoes of drugs, food and cleansing apparatus, has saved the lives of thousands.

KAISER'S FIELD KITCHEN IN BROOKLYN

Here are Lieuts. Louis Dale Hopp and James Duncan, the latter atop of Kaiser Wilhelm's field kitchen which was used by him in the late war. It was brought to Brooklyn from St. Nazaire, France.

Gluten.

Gluten is the main nutritive element in all flour made from grain, though it exists in larger proportion in some varieties of wheat than in others, and in hard wheat more than in soft. Gluten flour is flour from which the starch element has been wholly or partly removed, thereby bettering it for the use of diabetic patients.

Mad Musicians.

Among professional men actors supply the greatest proportion of lunatics. Then come, in order, musicians, civil servants, clergymen, writers and editors, and army men. The wonder is that editors do not figure much higher in the list.

Lines to Be Remembered.

A man who is good enough to shed his blood for his country is good enough to be given a square deal afterward. More than that no man is entitled to, and less than that no man shall have.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Oracles.

As for myself I am turned contractor of hammock netting for the oracles, taking my pay in notes. I throw strings out of the window and they snap them up at once. They sit in the cherry trees hard by and warble, "Hurry up! hurry up!" I never found out before just what they said. But if you will listen you will find that this is what they first say. A vulgarism, I admit, but native.—Lowell.
